Special Procedures for Offshore Funds

Offshore funds may make offshore offerings in accordance with Regulation S under the Securities Act of 1933 and concurrently make offerings to U.S. persons (generally tax-exempt persons) in accordance with Regulation D under the Securities Act of 1933. To make sure that the offshore offering is not targeted at the general U.S. audience and to ensure that the offshore offering is not used as a general solicitation or advertisement for the U.S. offering in violation of Regulation D, it is recommended that the website user be required to choose to enter the portion of the site designated for U.S. persons or the portion designated for non-U.S. persons. The adviser should implement a residency check prior to allowing access to offshore fund offering information. The check could be done manually or by computerized programs that confirm the address or the telephone number provided by the potential investor as being outside the United States.
